Dhaka : The national flag carrier of the Kingdom of Bhutan Drukair (Royal Bhutan Airlines) operates twice-weekly flights between Dhaka and Paro, offering both Bangladeshi and Bhutanese travelers direct air connectivity, enhancing cultural exchange and strengthening relations between the two countries.

Drukair operates a network of ten international destinations across Asia, connecting Bhutan with major cities in India, Nepal, Thailand, Singapore, and the UAE, apart from Bangladesh.

Additionally, Drukair serves three domestic destinations within Bhutan, ensuring seamless connectivity for Bhutanese and international travelers like Bangladeshis.

The airline's fleet comprises modern aircraft, including one Airbus

A320neo, three Airbus A319s, and one ATR 42, alongside three H130 helicopters.

As Bhutan's gateway to the world, Drukair continues to offer a reliable, efficient, and environmentally conscious travel experience, said a release.

With their strong commitment to safety, service excellence, and cultural integrity, Drukair continues to soar as Bhutan's leading airline, proudly carrying the nation's values "On the wings of the dragon", concluded the release.
