Dhaka : Wings Fly Aviation and Career Development Academy is providing the country's travel sector with expert and skilled personnel. Aged less than a year, the academy, in a short time, successfully trained eight batches of students on air ticketing and reservation as well as visa processing, with the ninth batch currently enrolled.

Ferdous Ahmed, Chairman of Wings Fly Aviation and Career Development Academy, said this while talking to The Bangladesh Monitor at his campus premise in the capital's Banasree area recently.

With 22 students in each batch, so far, 300 students have graduated from the academy. All of the students who have graduated are either currently working at reputed companies in the travel trade sector or have established themselves as entrepreneurs with their own travel agencies.

Since the academy has an IATA accredited agency on the sidelines named Wings Fly Tours and Travels, students can take IDs from the agency after graduation and run their own agency as entrepreneurs.

Both the courses are two-months long.

According to him, the academy's classrooms are equipped with state-of-the-art amenities, and all the trainers, hailing from renowned companies with over 10 years of work experience, are certified by Bangladesh Technical Education Board,

Their professional team offer after class support to students as well.

Upon completing their training, the students sit for exams held by Technical ICT Bangladesh, a company certified by the Ministry of Commerce. They are the ones who provide the students with certificates currently.

Moreover, soon the academy will be approved by National Skills Development Authority (NSDA). Afterwards, the students will be able to receive certificates from NSDA as well.
