

ANA delays return of Airbus A380

- A Monitor Desk Report

Date: 23 February, 2022

Dhaka: Japanese carrier All Nippon Airways has removed the Airbus A380 from its schedule until at least July.

Earlier, the giant of the skies had been down to return to Honolulu from the start of the IATA summer timetable on March 27. However, the type is now not present in ANA's regular flight schedule until July, though its return could be further delayed or moved forwards.

Even though ANA has not operated scheduled flights with A380 for most of the pandemic, the airline has been operating regular charter "flights to nowhere" around Japan with the type.

According to reports, A380 will now return to Honolulu flights ten times a week from July 1.
