

Boeing 787 flying mansion private jet defines true luxury

- A Monitor Desk Report

Date: 29 May, 2021

Dhaka: Chinese company Deerjet has taken a Boeing 787-8 and turned it into a luxury and stunning 'Dream Jet' private charter plane. At USD 74,000, passengers could book an hour of flying on possibly the most luxurious Boeing 787 in the world.

Designed for private charter, the 787 'Dream Jet' is operated by Deerjet, part of the Chinese conglomerate the HNA Group, and is one of only a handful of private jet-spec Dreamliners in the world.

The interior of this stunning aircraft is a part private jet, part high-end apartment. The 787-8 can host up to 40 passengers and is capable of flying for 17 hours nonstop. Its range is around 15,800 km (9,800 miles), making it possible to fly Hong Kong to New York direct or even Sydney to Helsinki. It has got all the usual Dreamliner mod cons, such as a smooth ride, quiet operation, and low altitude pressurization.

Entering the Dream Jet takes flyers into a world beyond luxury. Wood-paneled walls lead guests from the entryway to the main lounge area, where welcoming sofas and Lay-Z-Boy style recliners bring a definite residential touch to space. The large windows of the Dreamliner allow natural light to fill the space, making it feel modern and stylish but not over the top.

To the rear of the lounge is the main dining area, where twin dining tables are decked out with immaculate china and tablecloths. Each can be expanded to seat up to six, or kept at a smaller size for working or meetings. The table-facing couches double up as additional sleeping accommodation, providing berths for up to six.

Moving further aft, a large guest cabin provides the rest of the accommodation on board. Here, 18 business class seats with fully lie-flat capabilities provide a more than comfortable space for the entourage, but of course, there is something much more special awaiting the VVIP onboard.

Back through the dining area, lounge, and beyond the entranceway lies the Dream Jet's master suite. Passengers privileged enough to fly in the premium position on this aircraft can make use of an expansive dressing area, located to the rear of the entranceway within the private suite.

 Further forward, passengers come to the main bedroom, where a king-sized bed is decked out with the most luxurious of bedding and is complemented by a 42-inch flat-panel TV. The master washroom features a double vanity unit and a full-sized walk-in shower. The entire master suite has high levels of soundproofing applied, promising ambient noise to never exceed 46 dB, around what you'd expect in a suburban house.

The Deerjet 787 is targeted at some of the wealthiest fliers in the world and has been decked out to meet the demands of the most discerning high-end travelers.