Dubai: Emirates and West Africa's largest airline Air Peace have activated a bilateral interline agreement to expand connectivity between Africa, the UAE, and London. The partnership enables seamless single-ticket travel with through-checked baggage on select routes.

Beyond the 13 cities in Nigeria already available for Emirates passengers on Air Peace's network, the enhanced interline agreement now enables travellers to connect with Banjul in Gambia and Dakar in Senegal, both via Abidjan; and with Freetown in Sierra Leone and Monrovia in Liberia, both via Accra. It also strengthens Air Peace's access to Emirates' global network through Dubai, including key destinations such as London, Lagos, Accra, and Abidjan.

Emirates operates a Boeing 777-300ER on the Dubai-Lagos route, while Air Peace, with a fleet of over 50 aircraft, continues to expand its domestic, regional, and international network across Africa and beyond.
