Dubai: The Emirates Group is laying the groundwork for its next big growth phase with a mammoth drive to recruit the best minds and talent globally across 180 unique roles. The Group is looking to cherry-pick cabin crew, pilots, engineers, IT professionals and customer service agents at both Emirates and dnata.

Despite tough labour market conditions globally, the Emirates Group ended its financial year on 31 March with more than 102,000 employees, after having welcomed 17,160 people in various roles throughout the year.

Oliver Grohmann, Senior Vice President Human Resources at the Emirates Group said:

“In the last financial year, we received around 2.7 million applications globally for roles across the organisation. We are using the latest technologies, such as digital assessments, artificial intelligence and other top-notch recruitment systems to shortlist, select and respond to candidates in the most efficient and effective ways. “

For cabin crew recruitment, Emirates is organising open days and invite-only events across 6 continents, covering hundreds of cities all year round. The recruitment process is carefully designed to be completed within a day, and candidates are contacted within 48 hours of the assessment.

Since 2022, the airline has welcomed over 900 new pilots on its three recruitment programmes – Direct Entry Captains, Accelerated Command, and First Officers.

Emirates Engineering is planning open days in Australia, Canada, Brazil, South Africa and the UK in July and August. Emirates is looking for 75 Structural Technicians along with over 400 positions in aircraft maintenance engineering and engineering support roles.

The Group aims to recruit over 400 IT professionals with the right skills for a range of roles. The Group's IT team works on projects across B2C, B2B, support functions and operations for more than 40 brands and businesses in Dubai and globally.

The Group is looking for individuals to join Emirates Airport Services, dnata, marhaba or the contact centres. Those in customer service roles can work either in full-time or part-time positions.
