Date: 16 November, 2024

Muscat: SalamAir, Oman’s leading low-fare airline, is thrilled to introduce its lowest fare yet for travel between Muscat and Salalah.

Starting at just OMR 9.99 (Dh 98) for a one-way Light Fare, this new rate will be available on flights beginning December 1, 2024.

Unlike a limited-time promotion, this reduced fare is a permanent offering, underscoring SalamAir’s commitment to affordable and flexible travel options. By lowering costs, SalamAir aims to make air travel between Muscat and Salalah accessible to more passengers.

“We’re excited to introduce this ultra-low fare to Salalah as part of our ongoing focus on low-cost travel,” said Adrian Hamilton-Manns, CEO of SalamAir.

“Our mission is to provide passengers with affordable travel choices that don't compromise on flexibility or value. We've worked hard to re-establish our low-cost approach, making air travel more attainable for everyone."

The new fare aligns with SalamAir's strategy to enhance its low-cost model, empowering passengers to customise their travel experiences. Alongside competitive pricing, SalamAir is also rolling out additional services designed to improve convenience and flexibility.

With this fare adjustment, SalamAir reaffirms its commitment to accessible, budget-friendly travel. Passengers can book flights on the Muscat-Salalah route starting December 1 via the SalamAir website (SalamAir.com) or mobile app. Early bookings are encouraged to secure these lowest-ever fares and take advantage of SalamAir's expanded offerings.
