

Turkish airlines adds Phnom Penh to its network

- A Monitor Desk Report

Date: 04 March, 2025

Istanbul: Turkish Airlines will begin flights from Istanbul to Phnom Penh on December 10, 2025, launching the first regular service between Europe and Cambodia's capital.

This new route, the seventh by a flag carrier to Phnom Penh, is expected to boost trade relations between Türkiye and Cambodia, benefiting the Asian nation's economy.

The airline will operate three-weekly flights to Phnom Penh via Bangkok. Flights will depart from Istanbul to Phnom Penh on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Sundays, while flights from Phnom Penh to Istanbul will operate on Mondays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

Phnom Penh flights will expand Turkish Airline's Far East network to 20 cities and 21 airports. The service gives Turkish Airlines passengers easier access to one of Southeast Asia's key destinations.

Commenting on the new route, Turkish Airlines Chairman of the Board and Executive Committee, Prof. Ahmet Bolat, said: “At Turkish Airlines, we continuously expand our network in Asia and strengthen our connections with strategic destinations in the region. The launch of Phnom Penh flights marks a significant step forward in this goal. Our flights to Cambodia will create new opportunities for both tourism and business. Additionally, as the only European carrier flying to this destination, we will further solidify our leadership in the region.”

Guests can book tickets until July 31, 2025, for travel until June 30, 2026, with fares starting from US$659 (£522) for flights from Istanbul to Phnom Penh and US$649 (£514) for flights from Phnom Penh to Istanbul. These prices are available on Turkish Airlines’ official website and may vary at ticket sales offices and travel agencies.

ADVERTISEMENT

For more information on Turkish Airlines and its flight schedules, please visit www.turkishairlines.com or contact any Turkish Airlines sales office.

-B